

The device has been evaluated to meet general RF exposure requirement. The device can be used in portable exposure condition without restriction