

tokenME Fips: product description and operational description

The product is a small token with USB 2.0 interface for authentication and cryptography.

The product can be considered as a smart card reader with integrated cryptographic smart card (chip size) implementing the standard CCID specification.

The operation of the product is based on the exchange of authentication data between the token and the PC via the USB interface.