

A photograph showing the back of a grey Wii Remote. The device is lying flat on a green cutting mat with a white grid. A red arrow points to the small, circular latch on the right side of the battery cover, which is used to open the cover and insert batteries. The battery cover itself is a rectangular panel on the right side of the remote's back.

