

The image shows the back of a mobile phone with a large rectangular label in the center. The label contains various regulatory markings and text. A red vertical line on the left side of the label indicates its height. The phone's body is outlined with a double-line border, and there are four small rectangular protrusions at the corners. At the top center, there are two small circular holes. The label itself has a rounded rectangular shape with a double-line border. The text and symbols are arranged in a structured manner, with some elements enclosed in a circle.
