

All compliance details for this device are measured in radiated mode, and thus the antenna's characteristics are inherent to the measurement, gain information is not required.