

The label is permanently affixed to the device using a durable adhesive. It is designed to remain in place throughout the product's normal lifetime and cannot be readily removed by the end user.