User Generated Data Notice In accordance with Regulation 91 of the Australian Consumer Law, we give you notice that if we repaired goods that are capable of retaining user-generated data, (e.g. computer hard drives, mobile phones, portable media players, games consoles, USB and other data medium), then we provide notice that the repair of the goods may result in the loss of the data.

If we request that you send the hardware to us, we will use our best efforts to diagnose the issue, and if the issue is found to be defect in the hardware, we will, at our option (including the defect, repair or replacement), we may only repair or replace the hardware with a different model with substantially similar (or better) features, and return the repaired/replacement item to you at our cost, within 10 business days.

If you are entitled to the benefit of this warranty but the issue with the hardware is one of the exclusions to the warranty or otherwise of scope of this warranty, then we will diagnose the issue at our cost, and if we are able to provide a repair or a replacement, we will provide you with an estimate for the repair or replacement (and any shipment, insurance and delivery costs). If you agree to the estimate we will provide the repair or replacement and ship the repaired/replacement item to you, within 10 business days of the date you approved to us to undertake the repair/ replacement.
