RE: FCC ID: J69CB520

Attention: Denise Godfrey

I have a few comments on this Application.

- 1 There are no external photos provided. Please provide external photos.
- 2 The bottom side of the circuit board is not shown in the internal photos. Please provide a photo of the bottom side of the board.
- 3 Also, please provide complete photos of all components of the device including any keypads, operating controls etc.
- 4 15.231(a)(1) states, "A manually operated transmitter shall employ a switch that will automatically deactivate the transmitter within not more than 5 seconds of being released." The manual states that "The ACTIVE LED continues to flashes for approximately 15 seconds.." This indicates that the transmitter continues to operate for more than the 5 seconds after release. If this is the case, the device cannot be granted under 15.231. Please explain the discrepancy between the standards requirement of a 5 second cut off and the 15 seconds in the manual.
- 5 Please note that transmissions that produce a specific response in a receiver are not considered data. Please verify that transmissions from this device are designed to produce this type of specific response and are not transmitted for any other reason.
