

Operational description

The Corinex intelligent powernet Ethernet adapter is powerline communication device.

The primary circuit is used for supplying the device and using coupling transformer with reinforced insulation as communication medium too.

For user is only necessary connect Ethernet powerline device through RJ45 connector and used it as standard network device.

Triple led indication on front panel for powerline communication and double LED indication for Ethernet (802.3u) gives information about performance of device.