Step 1 With power off of the breaker, remove the existing switch plate. The junction box is attached to and disconnect the wires. Protect the junction box to make sure water cannot get inside.

Step 2 Install the mounting plate with a junction box. Stick the mounting plate to the junction box.

Step 3 Install the mounting plate to the back of the existing wall. Mount the plate and switch plate.

Notes

- If there is a mounting plate attached to your junction box, remove that one.
- If you do not have an existing junction box, you will need to get a new junction box to install the plate. Use care to connect with your local codes.

Step 4 Hook one end of the hook into the hole on the mounting plate and the other end to the edge of the camera. To see how to hook one end of the hook into the hole on the mounting plate, see the hook diagram.

Step 5 Connect the power wires. The white wire from the camera is marked white. Connect the white wire to the white wire. The black wire from the camera is marked black. Connect the black wire to the black wire.

Step 6 The copper wire from the camera is ground wire. Connect the ground wire together. Use one of the supplied wire nuts to connect.

Step 7 Put away all the wires, attach the camera to the mounting plate and fix the camera with mounting screws.

Step 8 Attach the camera to the mounting plate and the other end to the edge of the camera. To see how to attach the camera to the mounting plate, see the hook diagram.

Step 9 Adjust the hook to the edge of the camera. To see how to adjust the hook to the edge of the camera, see the hook diagram.

Step 10 Press the camera into the hole on the wall. Use the hook to push the camera into the hole. Use the hook to push the camera into the hole.

Step 11 After the camera is in the hole, use the hook to push the camera into the hole. Use the hook to push the camera into the hole.

Step 12 After the camera is in the hole, use the hook to push the camera into the hole. Use the hook to push the camera into the hole.
